

Chéré Allan

Vice President, Senior Services

Inviting a stranger into your home requires a high level of trust, even if that stranger is there to provide health services. Chere Allan understands the importance of earning that trust. As the Vice President of Senior Services at RiverStone Health, Allan guides the activities within the Home Care Services division and develops services for seniors throughout the community.

It isn't always easy, but Allan finds unique solutions to the challenges of home healthcare and helps her patients navigate the complex world of health services. With her experience in nursing and business administration and her extensive knowledge of state and national regulations, her home-care patients and other area seniors can be sure they are receiving the best possible care as she connects them to the services they need.

“We are a mission-driven organization,” says Allan. “We reach out to patients in a positive way. It’s that drive that makes us a recognized team at a state and national level.”

Professional Memberships:

- President, Montana Gerontology Society
- American College of Healthcare Executives
- American Organization of Nurse Executives

Awards & Recognition:

- Recognition for leadership within the Yellowstone Community Health Plan, Montana’s first HMO
- Recognized for leadership and contribution to the annual Senator Conrad Burns Senior Quality Conference
- Recognized for the development and implementation of Gold Advantage Senior Services with emphasis on the senior population