

Kim Kaiser

Executive Director, RiverStone Health Foundation

Have you ever wondered how to give the gift of health? Kim Kaiser has. As the Executive Director of RiverStone Health Foundation, Kaiser identifies opportunities for community members to give monetary gifts to public-health services. The funding ensures RiverStone Health's ongoing ability to provide accessible and quality healthcare. Through these gifts, people who can't pay for health services get the care they need.

With her experience in health promotion and fundraising, Kaiser has increased the reach and effectiveness of the newly formed RiverStone Health Foundation, an organization energized by the conviction that everyone should have access to quality healthcare.

"There are so many among us who face every day without medical insurance or the money to access healthcare," says Kaiser. "Even those with regular employment struggle to maintain their family's healthcare needs."

Kaiser says that support for the foundation says a lot about the community. "By choosing to make a difference in one of the most important issues of our time, access to affordable quality healthcare, we measure ourselves as a community."
